6:00 – 7:00 PM
Science Lecture Hall

Have you heard? There’s a new school funding law called the LCFF (Local Control Funding Formula). It’s a new way for schools to focus on student success. LCFF requires school districts to involve parents in planning and decision making.

It also:
• Shifts spending decisions from the state to your local school district.
• Requires your school district to focus on the eight key areas that help all students succeed.
• Provides extra funding for students with greater challenges.
• Gives your district more flexibility for how to spend its money to improve local schools.

LCFF is a huge opportunity for parents to shape the vision for your children’s education and make it happen!

Conditions of Learning
1. How could our schools and facilities be more conducive to (or “better support”) learning?
2. How might instruction be improved to successfully implement the new “common core” state standards?
3. What could we do to ensure that all students have access to a challenging and engaging education in a wide variety of subjects?

Pupil Outcomes
1. In what ways can we improve academic outcomes for all students including ELLs, special education students, and foster youth?
2. What does it mean for a student to be “career or college ready”? What can we do to improve our students’ career and college readiness?
3. What other ways might we measure student success, other than via academic assessments?

Engagement
1. In what ways can we increase our students’ sense of safety and sense of belonging at school?
2. What can be done to make the school experience as engaging and interesting as possible for our students?
3. What are the most meaningful ways to involve parents in our students’ education?

Technology
1. How could we better utilize technology to better support our students’ educational outcomes?

Vision
1. What might the educational experience for students and teachers look like 10 years from now?
